IOS Awarded the Canon National Dealer of the Year Award for 2007

COLUMBIA CITY, IN, JUNE 3, 2008: Imaging Office Systems, Inc. (IOS) has been named the 2007 Canon National Dealer of the Year. This makes IOS the first company to ever win this prestigious award more than once. During the presentation, Canon said the IOS sales group is without peer in the industry. This recognition is the result of their efforts to follow a consultative sales approach, truly understanding their customers' needs, the capabilities of the Canon products, and how to match needs with features.

This achievement also recognizes IOS's commitment to providing outstanding implementation services through their team of systems engineers, software developers, workflow and business process improvement experts, and certified project managers, and outstanding on-going support with their toll-free help desk, on-site support by certified engineers, and regular preventative maintenance.

About IOS

Deriving 100% of its revenue from content management, IOS has installed over 450 imaging systems in the Midwest. In addition to document management solutions from its partners Documentum, EMC, Oracle, Canon, FileBound, and Bowe Bell + Howell, IOS has an in-house Professional Services Group that performs system integrations and conversion, workflow and custom programming. With its multiple facilities IOS is also one of the largest document conversion service bureaus in the United States converting more than 6 million pages a month.
